

GARRET AGGRAVATED IN COURT AFTER MIDNIGHT SURRENDER

SENTENCE IS ORDERED

on charges amounting alleged extortion from Sullivan for protection of liquor traffic at the old Hotel.

He admitted Garrett's surrender had caught him unaware, but he sent police inspectors in search of everyone of the 62 witnesses who were scheduled to take the stand for the court last June.

It will be Wednesday or Thursday before he has them all checked, he said, and he will then confer with Garrett's counsel Herbert F. Callahan regarding trial date. He thought it is probable.

It is not known what judge will sit on the case. Judge David P. Dillon, originally assigned, is at the Springfield and cannot be known whether he would be re-assigned. Garrett has been quoted as saying he did not want to be tried by Judge Dillon.

Chief Justice Hall and Judge Williams and Burns are sitting in the Suffolk criminal sessions and it is likely that one of these will be the presiding judge at Garrett's trial, provided it is not postponed.

NOT SO SUAVE

Freshly shaved, with a good breakfast and six hours of sleep behind him, Garrett was taken from Charles at jail to court in a motor van at 9:30 this morning.

He was still easily, still flippant but not quite so suave and quick as he was when he was taken away from his two-year-old son's hair cut and a brown suit.

He kept apart from all other spectators except one and he would not answer the questions of any newspapermen, even the most persistent.

"Just can't talk," he said. "Don't think it's anything personal, just no one else is talking with me. William H. Corrigan, of the Boston Herald, was the only one of the press who was allowed to break and enter, larceny, possession of a weapon, with him Garrett covered at length several times in the past.

CROWD GATHERS

His arrival at the court created a crowd. Court officers were not expecting him until noon to lift the curtain, and when he was made.

He reached the courthouse before that. Atty. Foley, who was considerably surprised, said that he had been brought in. A crowd had gathered, but he saw him. He was taken through the courtyard to the detention room over the second session of the Criminal Court with his own prisoners.

Foley inquired the reason for his presence and was told that the jail was "too hot" and should be brought in. Sheriff John A. Keller, in charge of the jail, was reported in Marshfield.

THREE-HOUR WAIT

Garrett waited nearly three hours in the dock. He paced up and down nervously, his hands on the bars of his cell, looking continually at the clock.

Newspapermen attempted to question him but he would not answer. "I don't want to be optimistic or pessimistic or whatever you want," he said.

Eventually he did not want to be asked any more questions.

To a Boston American reporter, with whom he had been in good terms, he said:

"I have no personal feeling toward you, but I can't say anything. I'm sorry, but I'm going to wait, away from you so that we will not talk. Don't feel badly about it, it is not personal."

OTHER CASES CALLED

The cases of various other prisoners were called, one by one. Garrett remained pacing up and down. One Long, one of three men who supplied the $6000 double-burial plot which Garrett defaulted, walked into the detention room and was taken to the pen with a crowd of officers. Garrett was called to the fall.

"I want to surrender Garrett," said.

His expression altered. There was a noticeable tightening of the line about his mouth.

"All right," he said. He turned on his heel and resumed his pacing.

Later Leopold Manfredonia and Frank Anastasio, the two bondsmen on Garrett's original bail, went through the same procedure.

In the second session Chief Justice Walter Peasey Hall, on the bench, was finally informed that Garrett was waiting to be brought in.

"For what?" he asked.

GOES BACK TO JAIL

Callahan and Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick Bureau conferred with the chief justice at the bench. Court officers cleared the court of all except police, lawyers and newspapermen.

It was in no way to bring him in," said Chief Justice Hall. The door opened and Garrett was brought in by Deputy Sheriff William P. McDermott. He stood there for a minute, before being taken out. He said nothing. The bench conference continued and Garrett was taken out.

Reports were current that every arrangement for large bail had been made. Callahan made no request for bail nor did he make a motion to have the default removed. He may do so by motion to the court at any time.

COVERS HIS FACE

Where house later Garrett made the trip by van back to the jail, where shortly after midnight, while police were running in circles trying to find him, he slipped on the door and demanded admission.

Emerging from the van, he covered his face with his hands, but the press was not admitted into the jail yard.

Neither Garrett's wife nor Mrs. Hatch appeared at the court. It was understood that they had been surrendered by their bondsmen, the same three who went bail for Garrett.

Only over his vehement protests will Garrett be admitted to jail, said Foley. "If he does not get bail he has the preference of trial this month but he may make a deal for a later trial."

Authorities were of the opinion that Garrett's surrender, there was little official action. The county had $25,000 in the municipal seal for him up to October 1, 1936, but he was still in the understanding. The feeling was that if he had been captured this expense could have been justified.

The police never got their hands on the one of the first man tendering following indictment and arrested him. He was taken to jail. But again Garrett passed them by. Asked for a comment upon the mysterious surrender, Chief Justice Hultman emphatically refused.

"Dist. Atty. Foley lost him," said Chief Justice Hall. "He was taken with the help of the Boston police department. That is all."

He said that he was not concerned at the present time with any investigation of the circumstances of the former raid. He said that he was not concerned at the present time with any investigation of the circumstances of the former raid.

Garrett is back and my activities now are to line up the witnesses and bring him to trial. Whether he should be brought in or not will be up to the judge assigned to the case.

GARRETT CHUCKLED

The manner of Garrett's surrender was the climax to the wild goose chase he has led the authorities on since June 18, 1935, for the hunt which reflected no glory upon any official and caused a half million dollars' worth of Chagrin and dismay were caused by the hunt.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Boston has an open heart. Reports of the giving cheer to many unemployed on Thanksgiving Day show a rising tide over last year, according to several social workers in churches. People of small as well as larger means have been touched by conditions in many sections of this city and have given more than could be expected to brighten the lives of those who cannot help themselves.

Much giving of this nature has been under cover. Many have received tokens of thoughtfulness in food and wearing apparel from unknown sources. They do not know who to thank for these many outbursts of kindness. Little children that the writer of this letter visited in Greater Boston homes were overjoyed to get what they were expected to. Every one in the family was remembered. What greater joy is there in the world than to have the record of making some one happy? What an opportunity there is in your Christmas basket fund pictured in your editorial column!

Dr. Scharlach's Death

Held Loss to World:

Editor Boston American:

The world is much poorer in the loss of Dame Mary Scharlach, recently died in London. Dr. Scharlach was a pioneer in medical work among children who always in close contact with the Holy Family Home movement. Many of her books were used by physicians and mothers in the Church of England. It is true, as the press says, "she was one of the foremost physicians of Europe." Also she was known as a novelist and worker in the Anglo-Catholic movement.

Contrast in College

Girls Here and Abroad:

Editor Boston American:

It is interesting to weigh the opinion of young women from foreign countries. A student in Wesley College, pronouncing judgment upon American young women in our colleges. A young woman from Germany to whom college thinks young women in American colleges have more liberty than the young women in the colleges of Germany. It is interesting to hear that she will not have much persuasive power with young women in our colleges. They are constantly asking for more privileges. They are allowed to smoke in Wesley College with a tame constraint. They are creative with their liberties more than German young women.

Another young woman from Hungary in Wesley College feels the American college girl has a less difficult time than the Hungarian student because the former is free to receive assistance from the instructor at any time. This is not so in Hungarian college life. It will not be "long before the American young women of our colleges will have so much of personal freedom that they will long for some restraint. Give the American young woman her own liberty and she will lose her individuality.

Why All the Talk About

Denying the Reds?

Editor Boston American:

Why all this talk about denying the so-called Reds. Communism is a new thing. It cannot be handled with a little trouble. The unemployment situation would be less just the same if they sent all the Communists back home. What is the matter? Are the police going to his people who the head every time they protest about starvation or in regard to the inadequacies of Capitalism?

I have been out of work for several weeks, but I'm not going to help make riots and join in with the Communists, as they are a lot of misled idealists on the wrong road. They commit unlawful acts and defy the police, such as parading and parading without permits and causing riots and people getting hurt by the police.

Many a man who is almost up before his time doesn't realize that it may be Acidity. When you begin to lose your appetite and want to put things off until tomorrow, it's a sign that acidity is setting in. With many fullness, sourness and burning, "acid-indigestion" will make you feel like a man. More than that, it sets poison in the blood, makes you feel weak and vitality and make you feel old.

Acidity is stopped correctly today by a remarkable tablet called Pyramin. Pyramin contains a potent, harmless, anti-acid ingredient in scientifically balanced proportions which not only afford immediate relief but insure permanent relief for a longer time in the stomach.

Acidity between meals. In other words, Pyramin does not only afford you prompt comfort, but it also gives you a new vitality. To see what a difference it makes, take a package of Pyramin tablets today from any drug store. You will take just one each after your meal. If you don't see a difference, your money will be refunded.

Velvet Strikes a Note of Elegance

By ANN ARDEN

A VELVET hat is invariably one of the first fall temptations. Later a velvet afternoon or evening frock follows. At least, such has been the moderately popular status of velvet for some time. Not so this year. Already from indications velvet is slated to be one of the first fabrics for both formal and semi-formal use. Ever since the opening, all sorts of velvet creations have poured forth from the leading Paris houses.

VELVET suits and coats have returned to favor. The suit is being played up very prominently by the couturiers. It is, of course, shown in very formal versions—most of them trimmed with fur. Metal buttons or formalized versions in silk accompany these suits. A rather unusual model seen recently was trimmed with Persian lamb. The velvet coats, whether for day time or evening, are generously trimmed with fur. They are mostly long and adhere to a definitely fitted silhouette.

NEEDLESS TO say, the most perfect complement for the velvet costume is the velvet hat—and to those wearing wider brims and greater formality.

THE SUIT pictured, of black transparent velvet, has a smart nonchalance tempering its formality. The skirt has low pleats; the coat is wrist length, the narrow belt of velvet. Cravat scarf of white lapin fur may be variously adjusted. The short sleeved blouse is of white wool lace and may be worn tucked in or over skirt top—a bow of black velvet is placed at point of V-neckline.

THE HAT of black silk velvet is a model from Marcelle Lely, its flare brim caught at side front with bow of fur. The envelope bag is of black Reinolter, with Marcateo ornament. White suede gloves are worn.

PLAIN VELVETS, brocade velvets, silk velvets and transparent velvets have all had a share of glory in the mode. But now, a brand new type comes to join the fabric family. A velvet gown designed by Lucile Furry is covered with eyelid embroidery. The frock is very simply made, depending principally on the originality of the fabric for its interest.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WLEX.

GIRL, 9, WANTS CLOTHES MORE THAN TOYS

There are no toys in the life of nine-year-old Julia. Neither are there any for her younger sisters, Madeline and Theresa.

Of course, they would love to have some but there are other things—far more important—needed in the cold tenement house where these three little girls live with baby brother, John, and father and mother.

So this sensible young ladie—she has decided to give up the thoughts of dolls and doll carriage and those other playthings so much desired by childish hearts. And, in the note written to the Helping Hand Editor by Julia, they sell very politely for shoes and clothes and possibly some food.

NEED SHOES, CLOTHES (Refer to Case 69)

Please send to us a basket for Christmas because we had a sad Thanksgiving because my daddy is not working for six months and he is sick in a hospital and my sister is sick and my baby brother is sick. We like to have some toys but we need some money to buy some shoes and clothes because my mother has lots of bills to pay. Sometime we don't have much to eat.

We are four kids. Our names are Julia, 9 years old, Madeline, 8 years old, Theresa, 5 years old, baby John, 2 months. Please don't forget us. Make our Christmas happy, Julia, Grade 3.

The following cases were among many received by the Helping Hand Editor today. You may communicate with them by calling the Helping Hand Department at Liberty 4900.

WILL MAKE FLOWERS (Refer to Case 70)

I am writing to the Boston Evening American to see if they could help me. My husband is only working three days a week and has been doing it since he was long in a shoe shop. We have five children, 3 girls and 2 boys, from 9 years down to 3 years. He is earning $8 a week and paying $15 a month rent. You see that only gives us $3 to pay for food and for food. I know how to make paper heads. So this is what I would like. I don't want anyone to give me anything. I want to earn it. I would like to put an ad in this paper but I haven't got the money to do so just now. I make paper flowers, either plain or waxed.

This woman lives in Gardiner, Me. Anyone wishing to aid may call the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4900, and refer to Case 70.

MAY BE EVICTED (Refer to Case 71)

I am coming to you for help. My husband and I are in trouble. He has lost his job through lack of work, and we have to pay $300 on a loan. If we haven't it paid by the 28th of this month, they will take our furniture. We own an oven stove, so they can't take that but the furniture man can. We have only a little pick up furniture not worth a hundred dollars, so if they take that we will be going to the poor farm. My husband was out of work all last winter and so we couldn't save anything because we had to pay back five months' rent, $100. We haven't any money to pay rent and the landlord said we would have to pay some within two weeks or else.

This woman lives in Beverly, Ill. can be given her by calling the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4900, and asking for Case 71.

Young Wife Happy Now

"Before my little daughter was born I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly. I was able to do my usual work and take pleasure in doing it. We were so happy when a wonderfully fine baby girl arrived to bless our home. I have enjoyed better health since the baby's birth than ever before. I am sure that I owe it all to your medicine and I heartily recommend it to all women who are weak or ailing."—Mrs. Chester Decker, R. R. #1, Wheatland, Indiana.

Lost Race of Giants Bared by Mexican Excavation

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 1 (AP)—Discovery of remains of what was believed to be a hitherto unknown race of giants has been disclosed by J. E. Coker, mining engineer of Sayago, Sonora, 200 miles south of the Mexican Border.

Coker said laborers clearing ranch land near the Yaqui river in the vicinity of Sayago dug into an old cemetery where bodies of men averaging eight feet in height were found buried tier on tier.

The heads were especially large. Carved native stone bracelets were found on the bones.

Indians Didn't Get Him, Policy's Good

Watertown, N. Y., Dec. 1 (AP)—A life insurance policy taken out 12 years ago by "Uncle John" Brown, a local banker, was valid for death from any cause except "at the hands of hostile Indians." He died recently of natural causes.

Unborn Babe Unaffected by Fright of Mother

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP)—Expectant mothers need not be worried for fear their babies will be "marked," no matter what repulsive subject may frighten them, according to an illustrated bulletin of mental care issued today by the children's bureau of the labor department.

There is still a widespread notion that infants whose mothers have been frightened or injured will bear birthmarks as a result, the bureau said.

But physicians who prepared the new booklet point out there is no connection between the nervous system of the mother and of the unborn baby and that such "mental impressions" are impossible.

The only way a mother may harm her baby, the booklet said, is by trying to plan her own physical and mental life in a way that will result in the highest degree of health and happiness for herself and therefore for the child.

One fact which the booklet emphasizes is that having a child is frequently a pathway to better health for the mother.

Balanced Diet in Demand by Home Folks Today

From Martha Lee's Monday morning broadcast over Station WJLB.

SOMETIMES I think grandmother had a pretty easy time of planning. A lot of it after all, when it came to meal planning. A lot of it, she was sure that her family would be hungry. A lot of it, she would gratefully welcome whatever she might provide. Today new foods, new foods and a better knowledge of diets make many of us pretty exacting—not to say picky—in our food selection. And mother is often distracted in trying to plan better balanced meals that will appeal both to our eyes and our appetites.

I think that asparagus is one of the vegetable delicacies that is especially helpful at this time of year because you can use it as an appetizer, in salads, as an entree, or a vegetable, and it is always delicious and flavorful, wholesome and welcome. And best of all, though it is rich in the calcium that helps build healthy muscles, bones and strong teeth, asparagus is low in caloric value and still filling and satisfying. It is non-fatening.

CANNED ASPARAGUS

The canned asparagus that we use at this season is so tender, tender and delicate as though fresh from the field. The white asparagus is the stalks that are cut before they come above the ground; the green asparagus has been allowed to grow up into the sun, and while you prefer it merely a matter of choice. Remember that asparagus is packed in the can with the tips at the bottom so open it at the bottom to find the tender tips and let the stalks slide out easily without breaking.

Soap to Make Wash White

"How white your wash looks this week," said Mrs. Over-the-Way last Monday, and the slow puffs dragged all the handkerchiefs out of the basket, while Mrs. Under-the-Way told Mrs. Over-the-Way about the new quick-soaking soap granules that not only save time and labor on wash day, but produce the liveliest, whitest looking clothes ever.

Whether you use a washing machine or arm power, I know you'll be delighted with these new time-saving soap granules. They make mountains of suds instantly, even without hot water, and they're most lasting suds you've ever seen. Put them on soap granules to work for you and they'll make the dirt out of your clothes and then with a little light rubbing your wash is done and you'll feel fresh as a daisy. Try it all, it's the only soap that has that puffy, parboiled look.

AS A DINNERSALAD

Asparagus is familiar as a simple dinner salad with a French Dressing, or with Thousand Island Dressing. It is delicious, too, moulded in tomato jelly and served with balls of seasoned cottage cheese.

SCRAMBLED EGGS WITH

Beat 5 whole eggs until light and frothy. Add 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/4 tsp. pepper, 1 tsp. paprika, and 1/2 cup bacon fat. Drain 1 can asparagus through a colander, and reserve several 1-inch tips for garnishment. Sift 2 eggs, 1/4 cup milk, 1/4 cup butter, and 1/4 cup cream. Place in oven or under broiler to become brown. Serve on hot platter with garnish of asparagus tips and triangles of toast.

CASSEROLE OF CORN AND ASPARAGUS

Drain 1 can of corn and 1 can of asparagus and cut into 1-inch lengths. Measure 2 cups each asparagus and corn, and mix together. Add 1 well beaten egg, 1/4 cup milk, 1/4 cup butter, and 1/4 cup cream. Bake in a 2-quart casserole at 350 deg. F. for 20 minutes.

CREAM-CELERY AND ASPARAGUS

Shred celery in fine pieces and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Prepare 1 1/2 cups well-seasoned White Sauce. Cut 1 can of asparagus into 1-inch lengths and heat thoroughly in oven liquid. Combine celery, asparagus, and white sauce. Heat altogether and serve on toast.

"Bye till tomorrow."

Recipes From Olden Days

I've just fallen heir to some wonderful olden recipes. They make me feel as if I were a young man again and frayed with much. I'm choosing from it for you today a recipe for a fruit cake that is "cheap and easily made."

TRIP CAKE

- 5 cups brown sugar
- 5 cups butter or other shortening
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup sour milk
- 1 tsp. soda
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1 tsp. nutmeg

- 1/2 cup citron, sliced thin
- 3 leaping cups flour

Mix thoroughly and bake in a shallow pan for 1 1/2 hours. Put away in a stone crock for a week or more before using.

When does Tomato Juice become a cocktail? After you've added the LEA & PERRINS SAUCE

These Parker House Rolls Are Delicious

SCALD MILK, add shortening, and let cool while you prepare the other ingredients.

DISSOLVE 2 yeast cakes in half cup lukewarm water, combine with milk. Add flour to make dough.

SHAPE AND LET stand until double in bulk. Grease and arrange in baking pan.

BRUSH WITH BUTTER, let rise 5 minutes and bake.

Tasty Parker House Rolls

Everyone who entertains wishes sometimes that she knew how to make delicious Parker House Rolls. Getting them from a caterer is usually the procedure followed by the anxious hostess, but there's a certain thrill in acquiring the "insider" secret. "Yes, I made them myself!"

If you make them by our favorite 60-minute recipe you can mix them an hour and a half before the guests come and then watch their eyes pop out when you say you didn't set the dough until 4:30!

SIXTY-MINUTE ROLLS

Scoff one cup of milk. Add to it 3 cups of shortening. Let cool to lukewarm. Dissolve 2 yeast cakes in half a cup of lukewarm water. Add this to the lukewarm milk and shortening. Add 1 1/2 cups of flour. Mix thoroughly and then add 1 cup or more of bread flour or enough to make a smooth dough. Without letting the dough rise, immediately shape it into small round balls. Let it stand in a warm place until double in bulk, or about 40 minutes.

Shape the round balls with a handle of a wooden spoon dipped in flour, or a wooden knife handle making a deep crease in the center of each roll. Arrange in a baking pan with sides close together, but the ends not touching. Brush between the rolls with melted butter. Let rise five minutes and bake in a moderate oven, or at about 350 deg. F. for 20 minutes, or until brown.

For sure success, we recommend the favorite unleavened flour. No artificial bleaching means are used in this flour to cover impurities or poor wheat. You cannot be too careful about the food you give your family, and the sure way to examine the label on the bag. You'll find it equally good for general baking—bread, pie, cake, cookies—as well as for these light and delicate rolls pictured today.

Friendly Food Hints on Diet for Reducing

Most of us are familiar with our favorite brand of friendly hints that are baked in real bricks every right here in Boston town. And once our Starliner School, and the friendly food shops run by the manufacturers of these friendly hints. These shops have been established in Boston and Greater Boston to help serve the housewife with bakery and delicatessen products, and they are becoming more popular every day. The same high quality is found in the bakery products that you have come to look for in the bread, and these hints offer you breads, cakes, and cakes that compare favorably with the kind that mortals make. There is a complete line of breads and every Wednesday and Saturday the friendly hints are sent to the shops in pots, direct from the brick oven.

The delicatessen shops carry a complete line of salads, and cold meats, such as cold fish, cabbage or potato salad; then there are the famous friendly food shops, yellow, and kitchen hints. All oven-baked, also mixes meat, fruit cake, and puddings. There are four kinds of these friendly food shops around Boston and Greater Boston and probably there's one right in your neighborhood, or I'll be glad to send you up my list for you, if you like.

Weather or not, reducing diets still go on and every meal brings the S. O. S. for assistance in helping dissolve those two too solid pounds.

Persuade, I think spring and fall are the best times for reducing, but if you will, you will. So, remember that an ample amount of fresh fruits, fruit juices, vegetables and proteins, (chicken, milk, lean meats, etc.), and no fat point this way to the slender silhouette.

Greases and fats are very valuable in quick-reducing diets, and are safe. Orange juice or lemonade in fruit salads or desserts that are delicious and filling, asparagus, eggplant, tomatoes, etc., are full of vitamins, vitamins, and vitamins. Please note the oranges, Betty.

The session was one of the quietest in Wall Street of recent years—total sales aggregating 1,100 million shares and the smallest since 1929—but the line of the least resistance was decidedly upward.

Few gains exceeded a point. Allied Chemical mounted a 1 1/2 point gain. American Cyanamid, Pacific and Norfolk & Western Shares gaining 2 or more included American Can, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Mont. U. S. Steel regained most of its $1.75 dividend that came off last week and other shares gaining a point or more included Standard of New Jersey, North American, New Soft spots included West Union and Beatrice Creamery, 2 to 3.

Although trading was too light to indicate any decisive trend, the fact that activity came almost to a standstill when prices declined and picked up a little on the advance most of the session, was regarded as encouraging.

NEWS IS FAVORABLE

News was more favorable to copper and oil industries tended bolster hopes of price stability. For copper, all custom smelters were asking 11 cents a pound for metal, after last week's price 10 1/2.

Loan calling was the heaviest in the first two weeks and call money was firmest at 2 1/2 per cent. This was regarded as largely temporary, however, reflecting the month-end credit and collateral requirements. This firmness in the money market is usually manifest for several days after the turn of the month and it seemed barely

Rails and Prosperity

New England's Urgent Problem

John F. Tinsley of Worcester speaks an optimism, tempered by sound judgment, that is worthy of reputation at a time like this.

New England is bound to be prosperous, he says, because its normal rate of growth forecasts a population of 10,000,000 within twenty years. A consequent result, he says, will be 400,000 additional industrial jobs.

Senator Wagner of New York observed to this newspaper recently that unemployment, severe as it may be, is not so widespread in New England as elsewhere in the country. New England, by diversifying its products, had begun to dig itself out of the cold blast of depression had hit the rest of the country.

Sanford Thompson reminds us that the New England railroads without the shock of depression better and maintained a higher financial status of profit than the railroads of the country as a whole.

That is exactly why we should retain New England ownership of them, and it is exactly why that ownership is now threatened.

Strong in weak times, they will be doubly strong in firm times.

The Pennsylvania Railroad interests know this. Else they would not be steadily acquiring the Boston & Maine and the New Haven.

It is quite too bad our public officials either do not know it or do not appreciate the possibly disastrous consequences of it.

Once alien ownership takes full hold of them they will be operated not with an eye single to the welfare of New England, but as an adjunct, a fifth wheel, of the Pennsylvania system.

Mr. Tinsley predicts the future of twenty years, with which we agree. But let us recall the past of but twenty years, when the Morgans and Wall Street got the New Haven and Boston & Maine by the throat, and left the wreckage of them strewn all over New England.

These roads, by New England ownership, management and patronage, have been resurrected until they now hold the preeminent position of good service and financial soundness among all the roads of the United States.

We can't achieve the future greatness of which Mr. Tinsley speaks if we have to wade through the wreckage again or even if we have to suffer the ordinary handicaps of foreign, disinterested management.

Now that the public officials have read this, they should organize themselves together with the industrial and business interests of New England and proceed to Washington in support of Commissioner Eastman's long-handled struggle to prevent the acquisition of railroads by holding corporations. In that way, we believe, alien ownership can be forestalled.

Garrett Back—Now What?

Let's Have a Lot of Exposés!

Now that Mr. Oliver B. Garrett has tired of his comfortable freedom, of his sojournings around the country and of his social trysts here at home, it will be interesting for the people of Boston to note with what enthusiasm District Attorney Foley and the Boston Police endeavor to secure his conviction of the serious crimes for which he has been indicted.

For five months since he fled from trial on the charges of corruption and conspiracy involved in the notorious police scandals, Garrett traipsed around the country with more or less conspicuousness.

The last five weeks, according to his own statement, found him lodged in perfect security at his home or Summer estate in Franklin, the one place where the eagle-eyed detectives would have found it easiest to have captured him; that is, if they are eagle-eyed and if they had any serious desire to accomplish his arrest.

And, finally, he yields himself to the police at the place, the time and in the manner of his own choosing. He seemingly is subjected to none of the routine embarrassments which are the customary lot of those citizens of lesser prestige who come into contact with the law and the police.

The people of Boston have not found it easy to surrender their suspicion that politicians and highbrows were by no means anxious to bring to trial this former chief of the police liquor squad, a squad which painted a scandal in drab colors upon the reputation of the city and undermined the morale and efficiency of the Police Department by its alleged maraudings and corruption.

Garrett gave as one of the reasons of his flight from trial and his subsequent five months of freedom his fear that he was to be made a football of politics or politicians.

If there are politicians of prominence in Massachusetts and in Boston so vitally concerned in this sorry mess as Garrett would have us believe, the public will hardly be content until their identities and purposes are publicly established.

The fact is that the public want this case tried fully and on its merits in order that when a final judgment is rendered all the clouds of doubt, suspicion and apprehension will have been penetrated and lifted.

You Can't Card-File People

YOU CAN'T card-file people. You can't say: "He's this kind of a person—or that kind of a person. No one is one certain kind of person. We are all many kinds of persons, and we may do almost any kind of thing.

You can never tell what a person will do if you change his environment or alter the pressure upon him. Perhaps he'll go all to pieces—or, perhaps he'll suddenly become full of a piece.

You can never tell what a person will do if you change his environment or alter the pressure upon him. Perhaps he'll go all to pieces—or, perhaps he'll suddenly become full of a piece.

Most of our troubles with other people come because we are ignorant of this fact. We make up our minds that people are made in certain patterns and we expect them to act in certain ways. We expect Alice to be sweet and patient because she has always been that way. We expect Tom to be dashy and to be one certain thing and they're bound to fail you. And you deserve to be failed.

But let them be themselves—all their selves—and trust them to be their finest, largest, selves, and they'll be endlessly funny and beautiful, exciting and inspiring and comforting.

Copyright, 1930, King Feature Synd., Inc.

our neat judgments go haywire. Alice gets sick of being a Domestic Treasure and becomes snappy and irritable. Tom, faced with some crisis, becomes stupid and turns himself. And Mrs. Flip becomes calm, resourceful, a pillar of strength. I'm remembering something that happened after the big San Francisco earthquake. The people in the quake zone were short of food and the women in the neighboring towns rushed to their aid. Down in the Town Hall we were busy baking beans and boiling eggs, all of us church folk, side by side. Suddenly into the hall walked a group of women we had never seen before. Pretty women, better dressed than the rest of us. We looked at them with suspicion and envy—they seemed so useful, fine like ladies. But they weren't.

Their soft, white hands were marvelously deft and their laughing banter warmed our heavy hearts. All afternoon we worked together. We did not know, until the men folk joined us, that they were the girls of our waterfront.

You can't card-file people. You never can tell and you'd better not try. You're apt to hand yourself a rare if you do. Moreover, you'll miss a lot of fun. People are the greatest adventure on earth, if you'll treat them as such. Expect them to be one certain thing and they're bound to fail you. And you deserve to be failed.

But let them be themselves—all their selves—and trust them to be their finest, largest, selves, and they'll be endlessly funny and beautiful, exciting and inspiring and comforting.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Diary of a Modern Peppy

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Diary of a modern Peppy: Awake sometimes trying to enjoy a snack in bed but what with the two dogs yapping and gobbling at crumbs, impossible. This day shows debts all paid. God be praised, and so out and bought my mother-in-law a fur coat.

In the afternoon to the matinee. "There's a Crowd," so highly praised, but I thought extraordinarily dull, save for a quip or two of Fred Allen's. Home to catch up with my labors, working exactly 28 minutes, and inspiring my wife to comment I was killing myself with toil.

The Keats Speeds for dinner. Then to a play and afterwards to Hugh and Sadie Murray's to a party for Marilyn Miller and a great crowd there. To bed early and fell to reading the life story of the Bronte sisters and surprised to see the sun rise.

Fay King, the caricaturist, attended a swanky auto display recently and spent her time inspecting the bumpers. "The only part of a car that interests pedestrians," she explained.

Overheard in the Plattsburg, Mo., postoffice, she's black and white with a spot on her head as big as a dollar, dollar and a half of two dollars.

Then there is the comedian who thinks it must be terrible to be a Chinese woman. "Imagine turning on the light when your husband comes home," he says, "only to discover he is a Chinaman."

Personal noncomment for the most perfect imitation of a hard-boiled lady—that of Kathleen Norris.

A bus of gentle faced nuns was traveling from New York to Rye. Along the way pedestrians would stop, stare and suppress a smile. It became so awkward a Mother Superior.

perforated out and looked the bus over. On the side in flaming red letters was a movie sign, "Hell's Angels!"

A gentleman I know, on a recent chilly night, was reading a shuddery novel called: "Murder Through a Window." And bundling up in blankets left his window open. A neighboring tenant arrived home after midnight and in passing shouted: "Boo!" The gentleman landed over the footboard at a simple bound, and for the first time in his extremely religious life let go a blood-curdling oath.

They were discussing one of those omniscient Broadway party-crashers—the sort that seem to crawl out of the woodwork everywhere. "The only way to keep him out," said Bert Lahr, "is to use plenty of putty."

It is in passing through such a period just experienced that most of us on our throat, I for one can't be much of a Polyanna about the virtues of saving. Indeed, along with many others, I am beginning to believe there is a folly in thrift. We slave, save, go to the best banks for advice, and what happens? My philosophic pretenses from now on will be somewhat like that of the colored boy out our way. One day he was asked: "Boy, do you want to make a quarter?" He replied: "No, I have a quarter!"

Two much stress has been placed upon the haplessness and industry of the ant. I never believed an ant had much fun. Its life is one of after frustration—trying to build up something a minute's show-off as a careless shoe the will destroy. The grasshopper lives the idle life, jumping around with the ladies, spitting tobacco juice and playing tunes on his hind legs.

Words of the Wise Men

Men seem to be born to make fun, one of another.

What Is True Greatness

More Bigness? No, Indeed

GIANT EGYPTIAN STATUES, CUT FROM THE LIVING ROCK

Men are moved by three impulses that control them and push the race forward.

There's the instinct of self-preservation, or fear of death, that keeps us here, worried and working, but clinging desperately to life.

There's love of family, that produces children to take our places.

And, third, there's ambition, the desire to DO SOMETHING, to be "great" that pushes us ahead, and develops progress.

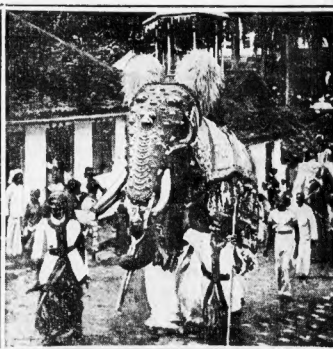

What is real greatness? It is not mere BIGNESS. You are amazed at the size of these gigantic statues, cut from the rock, at the temple of Abu Simbel, in Egypt, on the old Nile River. But, in them, you see only size, nothing great or beautiful.

The Egyptian ruler relied on size to prove how important he was, and to make his glory last forever.

He built huge pyramids, masses of gigantic stones, that amaze human beings even now.

He made statues like those that you see above, and HE is gone and forgotten and his great works are crumbling.

The picture of the elephant, representing bigness among animals, represents another effort to establish greatness, artificially.

This curious creature, seen in the strange Eastern country of Ceylon, during the Summer festival, is arrayed in as much glory as possible, including trousers, or pantaloons.

He moves slowly through the streets, with a magnificent little golden temple fastened to his back. In that temple sits a ruler, the only burden the elephant carries is a tooth, supposed to have been taken from the jaw of Buddha, founder of the Buddhist religion.

Buddha was a good man, and invented one of the best religions of the many that are on the earth.

The people have forgotten his true goodness, his sympathy for the poor, his renunciation of worldly things.

They have built up another Buddhism, and worship a tooth, bogus, doubtless, supposed to be taken from the jaw of the good man. They carry that through the streets, on the back of a gigantic elephant, and they think that is "greatness." But it isn't.

Greatness is DOING SOMETHING for other human beings, working for others, adding to the total amount of knowledge and happiness in the world.

There is no greatness in merely trying to make yourself seem big.

Alexander the Great planned to make a statue of himself out of a mountain of solid stone. It was to be so big that a city could be built in his outstretched hand.

He never lived to carry out the idea. But if he had built the city, it wouldn't have made him any greater. His greatness was in his own brain.

Greatness is in those that do create, or invent something. Such a man as Newton, Fulton, Lincoln, represent greatness. It is not mere size, but mental concentration, work and RESULTS that constitute greatness.
